“ Alex I feel as if I'm no longer a sister. I have lost my only sibling and I feel alone. Why did you have to go? I know for you it probably means a better place wo all the suffering you endured here but for me it fills me with sadness and pain bc you of all people tried to make others days better. You carried love to those most dont even look twice too. Your part of me and I you and I believe part of me died with you and I'm not complete anymore.

“ Becky, Thank you for reaching out. I am sharing your broken "Mother's" heart & empowering you during this season of mourning with faith-filled prayers.

Stan, Remembering fondly how I was renamed Ms. LaRooRoo by my favorite toddler.

Ashley, It has been a long while...time to choose a better way my sweet one.

“ The first time we met you were staying with your dad in Virginia Beach. You were such a vibrant and handsome young man. When yall came back to Kingsport, I remember you doing flips in our front yard. You preached at Sean and Kati about staying on the right path. You will be missed Alex.

“ Alex, I feel so much regret for not trying to help you more. I don't feel that I did everything I could have. I am so sorry for ignoring your messages. I struggled with my decision not to answer you Everytime and now I wish I would have. I hope you know that we all cared about you and wanted you to get help. I remember hanging out with you when you first moved here and when you used to try and get me and Mary to skateboard down grandmother's hill when we were kids. I hope you are at peace now and in a better place, and know we loved you. 💔😞

“ Alex, I remember you as a little 4 year old that I brought to my house to play with Emily, and you jumped on a tricycle and flew willy nilly down the hill, never afraid of anything. You were an adorable little boy. You struggled in life and I'm so sorry for that, but I do know you loved your family. We loved you too. Rest in peace Alex.

“ Alex, we remember you as the adorable child you were, and the handsome young man you became. You were taken from us too soon, but your place will remain in our heart. Our prayer is for peace, and hopefully you will reunite with your Bridwell grandparents.

Love you always,
Granddaddy and Grand mamma (Rosemary)
